Michael Moe, co-founder of GSV Asset Management and co-founder, CEO + CIO of GSV Capital, is regarded as one of the world's preeminent authorities on growth investing. His insights have been routinely solicited by everyone from CNBC to Congress. He has written extensively about investing in the emerging growth equity markets, and is the author of Finding the Next Starbucks, a business bestseller.

I found the book to be engaging, funny, and a fun, fast read about everything in the "Global Silicon Valley". I'm recommending this to all of my friends who are in startups, venture capital, and doing work related to innovation!

This book is exactly what an entrepreneur needs! An incredibly fun and highly informative guide to some of the most interesting and entrepreneurial cities in the world.

Everything you need to know about how Silicon valley operates. Great resource for anyone starting a company, will save the entrepreneur time and effort. For everyone else a fast interesting read.

Pretty disappointing. I was expecting that this book would have insightful commentary about the tech industry, industry trends, some good Silicon Valley insider stories, etc. but overall the book really lacked substance. The vast majority of the book consists of about 50 short chapters on 50 cities around the world, that briefly describe the tech scene in those cities and provides lists of angel investors, VCs/accelerators, places to eat, drink local beer, meet people of the opposite sex, local events, top funding rounds in those cities, etc.

Horribly over-hyped. A total waste of time and money!

It's essentially a magazine full of nonsense. I expected more from this author, so I was pleased to pre-order.

The book is a great resource for people looking to learn more about the global aspect of technology and change. Innovation is not just happening in the bay area and this book helps people see who and where the right people are to reach out to in the city closest to you all while keeping a lighthearted tone.

Loved the handbook! It's like an episode of HBO's Silicon Valley in print (but with an educational spin). Entertaining and informative. Perfect combo.
